

Collaborative Planning – Aiming High
- Ekeā Kō Tiritiri o te Moana

Thinking about Time

- Ahi kā – home fires
- Intergenerational - Mō tātou, ā, mō kā uri ā muri ake nei
- Time to get it right – investing wisely
- Time to change – what is now is not what will be

Thinking about Loss and about Gain

- Treaty rights – Article 2
- Mahinga kai – where are the wetlands? the veins of the awa? the migration pathways? the old trails?
- Value – what is valued attracts the effort
- Whose values? – who is there? who is driving?
- Utu– exchange and reciprocity, gift and gain
- Vision – shared vision in active partnership

Safe Spaces

Pou and Heke – how is it built? who built it? is it tika?

Needs – do we know what is needed to get it right?

Resources – do we have what is needed to get it right?

Tangata – are the right people involved?

Understanding – what do we share? where do we differ?

Te Korowai How dreams come true

Lessons from Kaikōura – what best practice looks like

Roles – iwi and community led, agency supported

Engagement – no-one with a stake left out

Courage – everyone risked to be a part of reward

Fairness – clear, transparent rules of engagement

Faith – long hard road to maintain the vision

Ngā Kete Gathering Up

Lessons from Murihiku – new old ways of seeing and doing

Mātauranga and Science – the joining together is happening

Mana whenua – genuinely directed from flax roots

Connected – results have a policy & planning place to land

Expectation – strengthen future collaborative processes

Where the hope lies

Working together – it can and does make a difference

Stronger – capacity building is more than a phrase

Steadier – a marathon not a sprint

Smarter – allow for innovation

No silos – Te Mana o te Wai is bigger than the RMA

Ekea Kā Tiritiri o Te Moana Aim High!

We already see how to do it

We are taking lessons from many places

We are gathering the tools to do it better

We are focussing on the people

We will see it done for future generations

Mō tātou, ā, mō kā uri ā muri ake nei
